Mark Bassin (PhD UC-Berkeley 1983) is Baltic Sea Professor of the History of Ideas at Södertörn University, Stockholm, and Visiting Professor of Eurasian Studies at the Institute for Russian and Eurasian Studies, Uppsala University. His research focuses on the history of geopolitics and spatial discourses of identity and politics in Russia and Germany. His most recent book, The Gumilev Mystique: Biopolitics, Eurasianism and the Construction of Community in Modern Russia (Cornell UP, 2016) received the Reginald Zelnik Book Prize in Russian History from the Association for Slavic, Eurasian and East European Studies. Mark has had taught at UCLA, UW-Madison, University College London and the University of Birmingham (UK), and has been a guest professor at the Universities of Chicago, Pau (France), Copenhagen, and the Collegium Civitas in Warsaw. He has received numerous grants and fellowships, among others from the Fulbright Program, NEH, NCEEER, Kennan Institute, Remarque Institute NYU, the British Academy, Leverhulme Trust, DAAD, Institut für europäische Geschichte (Mainz), American Academy Berlin, and the Foundation for Baltic and East European Studies in Stockholm. For Spring 2025, Mark is a resident fellow at the Swedish Collegium for Advanced Studies in Uppsala.